SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS.

CHAPTER I.—Grenfall Lorry, a wealthy American globe trotter, stumbles into acquaintance with a charming foreign girl on the train from Denver to Washington. The pair are left behind when the fiercer stops for repairs in West Virginia. II.—Lorry wires ahead to hold the train. He and the unknown girl ride four miles at a tearing pace in a mountain coach. There is no love-making, but a near approach to it as the rolling stage tumbles the passengers about. III.—Lorry dines with the foreign party, consisting of Miss Guggenslocher, Uncle Caspar and Aunt Yvonne. They are natives of Graustark, a country Lorry had never heard of before. IV.—Lorry shows the foreigners the sights of Washington. They leave for New York to sail on the Kaiser Wilhelm. Miss Guggenslocher naively calls Lorry her "ideal American" and invites him to come and see her at Edelweiss. V.—Wildly infatuated, Lorry hurries to New York. The name Guggenslocher is not on the steamer list. He sees the steamer off. Miss G. waves him a kiss from the deck. VI.—Lorry joins his old friend, Harry Anguish, an American artist, in Paris. Graustark and its capital, Edelweiss, are located by a guidebook. The Americans get no trace of the Guggenslochers there. VII.—Lorry sees his charmer driving in a carriage with a beautiful companion of her own sex. He gets a glance of recognition, but the carriage rolls on, leaving the mystery unsolved. Later he receives a note at his hotel signed Sophia Guggenslocher, inviting him to visit her next day. VIII.—In the evening Lorry and Anguish ramble about the grounds of the castle where dwells the court of the Princess of Graustark. They overhear a plot to abduct the princess and resolve to capture the plotters red-handed. IX.—Following the conspirators, Lorry finds himself in a room he heard them designate as that of the princess. X.—Lorry tells the princess of the plot. Mutual recognition; she is Miss Guggenslocher. Danno, the guard, is in the abduction plot. He feels Lorry with a terrible blow. Anguish to the rescue. XI.—Lorry quartered in the castle. The princess visits him, but forbids all talk of love. XII.—Graustark is bankrupt and owes the neighboring principedom of Axphain $30,000,000. The creditor demands cash or thecession of the richest districts of Graustark. XIII.—The Prince of Axphain offers to extend the loan if the princess will marry his son Lorenz. Prince Gabriel of Dawabergen also bids for the princess' hand with offer of a loan. Yvette tells Lorry that she belongs to her people and will marry Lorenz. XIV.—Lorry discovered kissing the princess while she is seated on the throne. He quits the castle by royal command. XV.—Retreat of the princess to Lorenz. The Americans recognize Gabriel as chief conspirator in the abduction plot. XVI.—Lorenz toasts the princess lightly in a cafe. Lorry dashes the glass from his hand. Challenge to a duel. Lorenz assassinated. Lorry charged with the crime. XVII.—Princess Yvette commits Lorry to prison. All Graustark rejoices at the death of Lorenz. XVIII and XIX.—The princess helps Lorry to escape. Disguised as a soldier, she conducts him to a monastery. XX.—Axphain offers Graustark grace on the loan if Lorry is executed before Nov. 20. Yvette offers a reward for the capture of Lorry. XXI and XXII.—Lorry prevails upon Quinox, an emissary of the princess, to conduct him secretly to the castle. He will surrender himself to save the realm. The princess spurns the offer of Gabriel. XXIII and XXIV.—Gabriel surprises the princess and Lorry in secret consultation. Quinox claims to have captured Lorry and brought him to the princess.

of pity. Still the face was resolute. Then she saw Anguish and the suffering Dangloss, then the accusing, merciless eyes of Gabriel. At sight of him she started violently, and an icy fear crept into her soul. Instinctively she searched the gorgeous company for the captain of the guard. Her search was not there. Was she to hear of the condemning words alone? Would the people go as Quinox had prophesied, or would they believe Gabriel and curse her?

She sank into the great chair and sat with staring, helpless eyes, desolate and feeble.

At last the whirling brain ended its flight and settled down to the issue first at hand—the transaction with Bolanz. Summoning all her self control, she said:

"You are come, most noble Bolanz, to draw from us the price of our defeat. We are loyal to our compact, and you are to yours, sir, yet in the presence of my people and in the name of mercy and justice I ask you to grant me respite. You are rich and powerful, we despoiled and struggling beneath a weight we can lift and displace if given a few short years in which to grow and gather strength. At this last hour in the fifteen years of our indebtedness I sue in supplication for the stipulated in the treaty. I can grant no respite."

"You knew when that treaty was framed that we could raise no such funds in fifteen years," said Halfont, forgetting himself in his indignation. Gaspon and other men present approved his hasty declaration.

"Am I dealing with the Princess of Graustark or with you, sir?" asked Bolanz roughly.

"You are dealing with the people of Graustark, and among the poorest. I will sign the decree. There is nothing to be gained by appealing to you. The papers, Gaspon, quick! I would have this transaction finished speedily," cried the princess, her cheeks
